Wedding party? No it's I-T raid

Former Finance Minister P. Chidambaram's relatives' coffee factory, offices raided by Income Tax sleuths in Kodagu

Income Tax sleuths and Policemen raiding the houses and properties of SLN Group in Kushalnagar this morning.

Kushalnagar, Apr. 26- Kushalnagar residents witnessed a convoy of 30 decorated cars including Sports Utility Vehicles (SUV) passing through the streets this morning and they assumed that it was a marriage party of some rich man. Only later it dawned upon them that the occupants of the cars were sleuths from the Income Tax (I-T) Department who were in the town for a series of raids.

A group of over 100 I-T sleuths divided into 12 teams arrived in Kushalnagar to raid SLN Group and other properties owned by Tamil-Nadu based brothers Vishwanathan and Sathappan. Sources said that the brothers are related to former Finance Minister P. Chidambaram and his son Karti Chidambaram.

Sources said that the Mysuru Police had provided security to the I-T team as the I-T sleuths had informed them about the raids and had requested for security. So secretive were raids that the local Police who also assisted the I-T team did not even have a clue about the businessmen who were being raided.

It was only after they arrived at the SLN Coffee (P) Limited and other properties including coffee estates owned by the group that the Police got to know about the raids.

Proverbs and idioms, being exclusively scripted in different languages, as is familiar to the sections in the land's population speaking, writing, reading and communicating particularly in Kannada wherever they are across the world, have crystallised out of life's experiences of people in successive generations, although none of them is attributed to any individual of an undermined past. So also the lines of Subhaashitas (words of wisdom that please the minds) that are now within easy reach of all who can read either Kannada script or Devanagari script. One such set of lines reads: Vidwatvan cha nrupathvam cha naivathulyam kadaachana; swadeshe poojyathe raaja, Vidwan sarvtra poojyathe. The expression prescribes that scholarship and sovereignty of a King are not to be equated; A King is respected only in his kingdom while a scholar is respected everywhere. One is prompted to draw a parallel to this expression by replacing the King with the land's netas, barring rare exceptions.

Pages of the land's history do mention kings ruling in different regions at different times extolled outside their captive territories, such as Emperor Ashoka. There is no gainsaying that scholars such as the legendary eighth century philosopher Adi Shankara have earned unqualified respect of people all over the land not only in their lifetime but also over centuries long after their passing away.

Having taken note of the vast difference between the short-lived-short-range imagery of kings and never-fading-all-pervading adulation for scholars, one may find it fascinating to take a peek at the public image of the land's netas. The Constitution of the nation provides the framework in which the people, read electorate, have elected their representatives, facilitating most of them to land seats of authority and unbridled power, not to forget self-granted fat package of lavish privileges, including five-figure pay cheque, free travel, subsidised food and so on, last but not the least, VIP and VVIP status, descending on public spaces like the proverbial 'Bull-in-a-China-shop'! The aam janata have to grin and bear it as it were while these elected representatives who profess to serve want to be served. Money-power and muscle-power along with the hard-to-erase feudal culture of the land's Diaspora are their best bet to be VIPs and VVIPs.

In the backdrop of the foregoing scenario, the two dramatically announced measures at the instance of the Prime Minister, namely (a) knocking off the red beacon light on official cars of Ministers and (b) barring use of official transport for private trips by the bureaucrats have come not a day too early even as public angst over the open arrogance of the netas has crossed all limits of tolerance.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

If you hear someone in this remote town in Rajasthan saying, "Rastrapathi has gone to graze goats" or "Pradhan Mantri' has left for the city to purchase essentials", don't be surprised. In Ramnagar village, about 10 km from the district headquarters with a population of a little over 500 people from the Kanjar community, children are usually named after high offices and popular figures. Though most of the people in the village are illiterate, their names speak otherwise. A woman was so impressed by the aura of the district collector during his visit to the village that she named her grandson 'Collector'; the child — now 50 — never even made it to school. —In The Hindu

'Mother of Orphans'

Maharashtra: The story of Sindhutai Sapkal is one of incredible determination in the face of adversity, rebirth and love of children who nobody else wanted. The 68-year-old has raised over 1,400 orphans, offering them not just food and shelter, but also the love of a real family. Her amazing work has earned her over 750 awards, and the nickname "Mother of Orphans."

Sapkal runs four orphanages in her home town of Prune, India's Maharashtra State – two for girls and two for boys – with the help of her biological daughter, Mamta, and her eldest adopted children, some of whom have become lawyers, doctors and professors. The children under her care were found trying to fend for themselves in railway station, abandoned in dustbins. Over the last 40 years, Sindhutai Sapkal has travelled to countless villages, giving speeches until her throat was dry, trying to collect donations to provide a better life for her adopted children. She managed to build four orphanages, where many abandoned children have grown into respectable members of society.

Skull Flowers!

New York: The snapdragon or dragon flower is one of the most popular plants in gardens around Europe, United States, and North Africa. Named for its resemblance to a dragon's mouth that opens and closes when lightly squeezed, this beautiful flower also has a dark side. When its petals wither away and fall off, they leave behind dried seedpods that look a lot like creepy tiny skulls.

According to one story, women who eat the tiny skull-like seedpods will regain their lost youth and beauty, while another says that scattering them throughout the house will protect residents from curses, sorcery and other evil things. But how does the beautiful snapdragon flower turn into a creepy skull? According to biochemist/blogger Johanna L. Roose, "The skulls are really the seed pods of the plant after the flowers pollination petals will withered away. Dissecting the flowers in their prime shows the ovary at the base of the bloom. The pollen-containing stamens and the style emerge from the orifices in the ovary. These structures leave behind gaping holes look like a mouth and eye sockets," Roose explains.

Water pipeline damaged to provide new connection

Sir,

We all talk about conserving energy in our day to day life — be it power, water or any other natural resources. We also celebrated World Energy Conservation Day very recently in December 2016 but we are blindfolded on wastage of natural resources in our surroundings.

This summer we are already affected by water crisis and there is a limited supply. In this scenario our authorities are blindfolded to take required actions on wastage of water due to damaged pipeline.

The authorities had dug up the road in Bogadi 2nd Stage (south) adjacent to CFTRI Layout. The image shown is of the road which connects to CFTRI Layout through Janahitha Main Road in Bogadi 2nd Stage. The existing supply line has been damaged in the process of providing a new connection.

Since a week water is flooding and goes waste at the time of supply, in the morning and there are also chances of water getting contaminated. The stagnant water has become a breeding ground for mosquitoes and is posing health risks. Though the authorities have assured on fixing the problem none of them have turned up from the day one.

Through SOM I request the authorities concerned to look into the problem and take necessary action to repair the supply line.

Dedicated lane for KSRTC buses

Sir,

After a gap of almost three years, the Traffic Police and KSRTC authorities have re-introduced the dedicated bus lane for KSRTC buses entering Mysuru City Bus Stand. This has definitely reduced the traffic chaos and confusion hitherto experienced in front of Garuda Mall, to a considerable extent.

But the buses exiting from the same entry gate opposite Garuda Mall is creating traffic jams now. No dedicated bus lane has been provided for the vehicles coming out of the bus stand, probably owing to turning radius issue of the buses.

Since buses need a larger turning radius, KSRTC authorities can widen the exit gate and then demarcate a dedicated bus lane for the exiting buses also. This will definitely ease the partial congestion presently experienced in front of the bus stand gate and near the traffic signals.

No additional trains from Mysuru to Bengaluru for now

27th Divisional Railway Users Consultative Committee meeting held

Mysuru, Apr. 26 - If you are expecting more trains between Mysuru and Bengaluru with the completion of track doubling works, you will be disappointed as the Railway authorities have stated that no more extra trains can be run between the two cities as the Mysuru Railway Station is unable to handle even the present traffic itself.

"The Mysuru Railway Station is already heavily congested and cannot handle the pressure and this cannot be done despite the track doubling works and even after electrification of tracks in the future. This is because the introduction of additional services hinges on the de-congestion of Mysuru station for which the Kadakola station has to be developed as the second terminal. However, the plan is yet to be approved by the Railway Board and fresh efforts are on to get it cleared," said Divisional Railway Manager (DRM) Atul Gupta.

He was replying to a question raised by Chamaraja MLA Vasu at the 27th Divisional Railway Users Consultative Committee meeting held yesterday.

The DRM said that the Mysuru Junction with six lines did not have the capacity to handle the existing traffic and was saturated. Besides, there is was no scope for any expansion of the yard since the station is surrounded by built up area and no land could be further acquired. The proposed satellite terminal at Kadakola will cost Rs. 263.45 crore.

A proposal has been submitted to headquarters and a high-level committee has been constituted to look into it. With the development of the terminal, Mysuru Division will be able to handle more number of trains, he added.

Gupta laid out the action plan for elimination of manned and unmanned level crossings in the Mysuru Division and said that over 240 level crossings have been eliminated in the last four years.

He noted that the safety record of the Mysuru Division in the last two years was near zero with just a solitary incident involving a goods train. He also added that renewed focus will be on for further improving the cleanliness standards in railway station premises and on trains.

Speaking on financial performance of the division, Gupta said that the overall revenue was Rs. 608.97 crore with originating freight loading being of the order of Rs. 4.815 million tonnes. The number of passengers on originating basis stood at 482 lakh, he added. Committee members spoke about the need for additional amenities such as drinking water facility, better quality approach road, extension of platform shelters, additional seating arrangements, better mechanism for ensuring safety of passengers' belongings in overnight trains, better food, additional stoppage for trains and introduction of new trains, etc.

P. Ram, Additional Divisional Railway Manager, S.G. Yatish, Senior Divisional Commercial Manager and Secretary, Divisional Railway Users Consultative Committee and other senior Railway officials were present.

Govt. to take measures to prevent wastage of food, says Minister U.T. Khader

U.T. Khader

Bengaluru, Apr.26 (KMS&DM)- Stating that the Government will take measures to prevent wastage of food at Hotels, restaurants and marriage halls, Food and Civil Supplies Minister U.T. Khader on Tuesday said that there were plans to involve Non-Government Organisations (NGO's) in a big way.

Addressing a press conference here yesterday, Khader said NGOs will be engaged to ensure that the leftover food will be distributed among the needy.

"We have the right to eat food, but do not have the right to waste food," he remarked. Referring to service charge in hotels, the Minister said hotels and restaurants in Karnataka will soon have to display boards saying 'Service Charge' is voluntary.

Pointing out that the Government was acting on the guidelines issued recently by the Centre, Khader said the Centre has said that service charge, a term used by restaurants for 'tips' should remain voluntary. Many restaurants collect 6 to 8 percent of the bill as service charge, with consumers remaining unaware that they are paying tips.

Khader said he would meet the Hotel Owners Association and issue a notification soon. Hotels and Restaurants cannot deny entry to consumers who refuse to pay service charge. Consumers who find violations, can file complaints with the Consumer Courts, he said and added that Food Inspector and Legal Metrology officials will conduct random inspections.

The Minister further said the Government would supply a litre of kerosene every month to BPL families to rural areas, even if they have LPG connections.

Khader also announced that two LED bulbs will be given to each BPL family that is not using kerosene.

Ration cards: Stating that the Government has relaxed the procedure to issue ration cards, Khader said all it takes is an application with eligibility self-certification. The department will later verify the authenticity of the details provided and act if they are false, he added.

Special Courts to try atrocity cases against Dalits

Bengaluru, Apr. 26- Chief Minister Siddharamaiah on Tuesday directed the Social Welfare Department to take measures to establish seven more Special Courts for quicker disposal of cases related to atrocities against dalits.

Chairing a high-level vigilance committee meeting under SC&ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, he asked Social Welfare Minister H. Anjaneya to hold a meeting with Karnataka High Court Registrar on setting up new Special Courts at the earliest, which are likely to come up in Haveri, Koppal, Davanagere, Dharwad, Udupi, Chitradurga and Chamarajanagar districts.

Instructing the Deputy Commissioners of all districts to ensure that dalits get entry into all temples and they get haircut without much hassle, Siddharamaiah also directed to take steps for increasing the conviction rate of cases filed under the Act.

Task Force to be set up to protect Government properties

Roshan Baig

Mysuru, Apr. 26 (SPN&DM)- Urban Development Minister Roshan Baig has said that people's representatives have made a representation to the Government seeking formation of a Task Force to protect MCC and MUDA properties, on the lines of BBMP.

Speaking to presspersons after taking part in the MUDA meeting here yesterday, Baig said that several people's representatives were of the opinion that a Task Force headed by an AC was very much necessary for protecting Government properties and added that he would discuss the issue with the concerned authorities.

Continuing, the Minister said that there were complaints of lack of civic amenities in many MCC localities and newly formed layouts.

Pointing out that the people's representatives have brought this to his notice about the lack of space for waste disposal and construction of public buildings, the Minister said that there were also complaints of unauthorised layouts coming up in MCC limits.

The Minister further said that measures would be taken to improve infrastructure in city layouts and to augment revenue collection from the layouts.

'Efforts on to stop man-animal conflicts'

Tiger campaign Ambassador Prakash Rai is seen addressing the gathering at the 'Uluva Yogi Shrama Samskruthi' theatre camp organised by Nele Hinnele Institute in city yesterday.

Mysuru, Apr. 26- Forest Department has been holding discussions to solve the current man-animal conflicts said Save Tiger campaign Ambassador Prakash Rai.

He was speaking during the 'Uluva Yogi Shrama Samskruthi' organised by Nele Hinnele Institute at B.M.Sri Auditorium in Manasagangothri as a part of its theatre camp yesterday.

Many wild animals stray into the villages located on the borders of the forests in search of food, which has been a cause of worry for the farmers.

There is a need for the authorities to think on protecting the interest of the farmers as well as providing ample food for the wild animals, he added.

Stating that one should have mother-son sentiments with the earth, Prakash said that people must not spoil the fertility of the soil in greed for money.

Later, the organisers conducted an interaction with farmer-couple Rekha and Rohit. Theatre Camp Director H. Janardhan was also present.

Centenarian freedom fighter M.G.Chengappa passes away

Mysuru, Apr. 26- Veteran freedom fighter Malavanda G. Chengappa, a resident No. 5, Chaitra Apartment, S. V. Road, Yadavagiri, passed away at a local hospital, here this morning following a brief illness. He was 104 years old.

He is the elder brother of Congress leader late M.G. Kuttappa.

He was a freedom fighter from Kodagu, who had been jailed for several months.

He also had the good fortune of interacting with Father of our Nation Mahatma Gandhi in Kodagu. He had strongly fought for liquor prohibition in Kodagu.

He leaves behind his wife Sharada Chengappa (Pattamada), daughter Prema Chengappa and host of relatives and friends.

Last rites were performed today at Chirashantidhama in Gokulam this afternoon.

China bans Islamic baby names in Muslim majority Xinjiang province

List of banned baby names released amid ongoing crackdown on veils and beards

Beijing, Apr. 26 - Many couples fret over choosing the perfect name for their newborn, but for Muslims in Western China that decision has now become even more fraught: pick the wrong name and your child will be denied education and government benefits.

Officials in the western region of Xinjiang, home to roughly half of China's 23 million Muslims, have released a list of banned baby names amid an ongoing crackdown on religion, according to a report by US-funded Radio Free Asia.

Names such as Islam, Quran, Saddam and Mecca, as well as references to the star and crescent moon symbol, are all unacceptable to the ruling Communist party and children with those names will be denied household registration, a crucial document that grants access to social services, healthcare and education.

A full list of names has not yet been published and it is unclear exactly what qualifies as a religious name. China blames religious extremists for a slew of violent incidents in recent years that have left hundreds dead. It has launched a series of crackdowns in Xinjiang, home to the Muslim Uighur minority and one of the most militarised regions in the country.

Uighur rights groups complain of severe restrictions on religion and freedom of expression, and say the attacks are isolated incidents caused by local grievances, not part of a wider coordinated campaign. Young men are banned from growing beards in Xinjiang and women are forbidden from wearing face veils.

Rights groups were quick to condemn the name ban, which applies to dozens of names deemed by Communist party officials to carry religious overtones.

Authorities in Xinjiang passed new legislation last month expanding a host of restrictions, including allowing staff at train stations and airports to deny entry to women wearing face veils and encouraging staff to report them to the police.

The new law also prohibits "abnormal beards" and "naming of children to exaggerate religious fervour". Various cities in Xinjiang previously had rules banned women wear face veils and men with long beard from public transportation, but the new law applies to the entire region.

Voices from the Grassroots

Learning 'fair & compassionate economics' from a Jenukuruba Chieftain…

By Dr. R. Balasubramaniam

It was the year 1989 and was around the time that I was slowly beginning to understand the indigenous way of life. These were also some of the best years of my life and I cherish the memories of my association with some of the elderly tribal chieftains of Heggadadevanakote (H.D. Kote).

I was keen on learning how the Jenukurubas, an indigenous tribe with distinct anthropological features collected 'Jenu' (honey) from the forests. Hostel Masthi (as he was popularly called) was the chieftain of the Jenukurubas living in Hosahalli and surrounding colonies and was a respected elder who used to be sober only when he ventured into the forest. On learning that I was keen to understand how they collected wild honey, he invited me on his next trip.

Full of anticipation of the adventure ahead, I set out with him, his 10-year-old son Mara and 3 other Jenukuruba tribals from the colony. After a walk of around 3-4 kms, Masthi spotted a large beehive hanging high up on a tall tree. He asked Kala, who was accompanying him, to quickly climb up the tree to cut the hive with the sickle that he was carrying. Kala was a natural climber and watching him climb up the tree is something that I can never forget. Within minutes he seemed to reach the hive and shouted out to Masthi to be ready below. Not sure of what was happening, I stood a little distance away watching the whole scene unfold in front of me.

Masthi and another tribal Mahadeva spread out their towel and placed the broad leaves that they had freshly cut from a nearby teakwood tree on it. Holding each end of the towel, they stood underneath the tree in direct line of the hive. The bees must have sensed Kala's presence and started buzzing angrily around the hive. In a split-second, Kala seemed to put his hand into the hive and gently extracted out the 'queen' and placed it in the middle of his forearm. All the bees followed the queen and quickly settled down on his forearm. I stood transfixed staring at the hive that was forming on Kala's forearm and was left wondering why Kala was not getting stung by these disturbed bees.

With his other spare arm, Kala sliced the hive around 6-8 inches below where it was attached to the branch and the rest of the hive with the honey, wax, pupa and all came crashing down. More adept than a determined fielder on a cricket field, Masthi and his mate caught the falling hive on the teak leaf bed and folded the cloth immediately around it.

Kala in the meanwhile pulled the queen again from the new hive on his hand and gently put her back on to the original base of the hive still hanging from the tree. And within minutes, all the remaining bees flocked around their queen and the hive formed into the exact shape that it was before Kala had sliced it. Kala came down the tree as quickly as he had climbed it and everything seemed to happen within a few minutes and it looked as though nothing had really changed.

I was left spell-bound and unsure of how to respond when Masthi offered me a dripping piece of the crushed hive – honey, wax and possibly some unlucky pupa and larva. I had never tasted anything like this and it surely was finger-licking good. Masthi felt that we had enough adventure for the day and we started to walk back to Hosahalli.

On the way back, I could not contain my curiosity any longer and was keen to know why Kala sliced the hive so low and had left most of the honey back in the hive itself. It seemed economically stupid that someone would leave behind much of the honey back in the hive and still feel that they had completed a good day's job. Masthi's answer continues to resonate in my ears even today. For him this was indeed a no-brainer. He simplistically explained that the honey belonged to the bees and that they were actually thieves stealing it from them. He said that since the bees had done all the hard work in collecting the honey, it was only more than fair that they left behind most of it for them to use during the difficult months ahead. If he and his people did not have to use this part of the hive with the honey in it for food and preparing medicines, he would not even have taken this much too. And Masthi and his fellow tribals were bringing back this hive not just for themselves but to be shared amongst all his clansmen.

For a person educated in a system that looks to maximising profits and minimising labour, this lesson in compassion, fairness and sharing seemed perplexing. For a world that seems to be rapidly absorbing and celebrating the spirit of market economics and individual attainment, Masthi and his fellow tribals will seem unreal and this anecdote difficult to believe.

Masthi and people of his generation are long dead now but along with them has also disappeared this sustainable and meaningful way of living too. What is worrisome is not just the fact that this lifestyle sounds impractical and difficult to subscribe to for many of us, but is also no longer a part of the culture and life of our indigenous brethren too. While one may feel that modern existence and the pressure of a consumer economy will neither slow down nor have the space for people like Masthi, we need to contemplate and think on how we can integrate this paradigm into our everyday lives. For without it, sustainable development will only remain a slogan that is bandied about in international conferences and global summits.

After ban on use of wild animals...

Circus artistes take to daring acrobatic feats

Mysuru, Apr. 26 (OSR) - Following the ban on use of wild animals in 1998 and elephants from outside the State since last year, the Great Bombay Circus, which has returned to Mysuru after a gap of 10 years, has come up with a host of new daring acrobatic feats by artistes.

Addressing a press meet at the Circus Tent pitched at the Horse Park behind Mysuru Zoo in Nazarbad, K.M. Sanjeev, Proprietor of the Circus, said that they were now focusing more on acrobatic gymnastics by roping in performers from foreign countries like Ethiopia, Russia and China besides artistes from different States of India.

The main attractions at the Circus, which began its shows on Apr. 15, are the sky walk, comic chair act, acrobat juggling, bird act, vertical swinging acrobat, Russian devil clown act, high wheel cycle skipping, stick balance, hula hoop, ring balance, roller act, basketball etc.

Artistes urge government to recognise them on par with film and sports stars by giving them National Awards on the lines of Russian government.

Trained animals like camels, horses, dogs and exotic birds including scarlet macaw, the blue and yellow macaw, African grey parrot and pigeons are adding glitz to the show which will conclude in May second week.

The huge tent can accommodate about 1,500 spectators, Sanjeev said and added that "Earlier before the ban on inclusion of wild animals, performance by animals formed 50% of the acts in the Circus. Now their role has come down to 20% while that of the artistes has gone up to 80%."

"There are about 70 performers accompanied by over 100 supporting staff to run the show. We need about Rs. 80,000 to Rs. 1 lakh per day to run the show," Sanjeev said and sought support from Mysureans to come in large numbers and encourage the artistes. Stating that before Zoos came into existence, it was Circus which introduced wild animals and birds to people, he said many people used to throng the Circus just to see these animals whom we treat like our own children.

Scenes for movies like Amitabh Bachchan's 'Don', Hrithik Roshan's 'Krrish' and Surya's 'Seventh Sense' are said to have been shot at this Circus.

Some of the artistes, speaking to SOM said that they need encouragement and appreciation from people because that is what keeps them going.

They also urged the government to recognise them on par with film and sports personalities by giving them national awards on the lines of Russian government.

NOTE: There will be three shows daily at 1 pm, 4 pm and 7 pm with advance booking facility.

Kreeda Kaushalya, traditional board games expo from tomorrow

Ramsons Kala Pratishtana (RKP) is ready with its ninth edition of Kreeda Kaushalya — the traditional games exhibition and sale. The expo will be open from Apr. 27 to May 14 between 10 am and 7 pm everyday including weekends.

It will be inaugurated tomorrow at 11 am by Indrakshi Devi and R. Raja Chandra at Handicrafts Sales Emporium (HSE) at Ramsons, opposite Zoo, in Ittigegud. Dr. H.P. Devaki, Director, Oriental Research Institute (ORI), University of Mysore, will be the chief guest.

From its inception in 2007, Kreeda Kaushalya has till now introduced over 30 traditional board games that were and are popular across the geographical regions of the country albeit in variations.

This edition of Kreeda Kaushalya features seven new games: Tabla, 28-sepoys, Huli Kallu, Basavana Aata, Daya Kattam, Immadi Huli Kattu and 12-Men's Morris. A printed set of rules, easy to comprehend is given with each board game that is purchased.

Kreeda Kaushalya's board games set of pawns, boards and dice have been designed by the Ramsons Kala Pratishtana's resident curator and graphic designer, H.S. Dharmendra. A bewildering variety of media ranging from embroidered silk to Saharanpur inlaid wood, from the brightly painted Jaipur wood to dark ebony teak of say Palanguli or Aliguli Mane, have been used while the pawn sets are equally brightly painted and as colourful. The tiny tigers and goats carved out of softwood and exquisitely painted are eye-catching. Chess sets in onyx and inlay and the classic Chaturanga or four-handed chess are also on display.

Kreeda Kaushalya is the celebration of a heritage that encompassed rural and urban societies with ease. The Kreeda Kaushalya Research team of Raghu Dharmendra and Dr. Dilip Kumar (a medical professional) led by R.G. Singh have made field forays across the country collecting board games memorabilia, documenting popular games and finally brought out a well-documented and illustrated monograph on traditional board games. This book was released at the 19th International Board Game Studies Colloquium that was held at Nuremberg, Germany, in 2016. The monograph is priced at Rs.300 (the special offer price for the duration of the exhibition is Rs.250). The monograph is available for sale at the venue.

Kreeda Kaushalya has a 'special games parlour' a section set aside for those interested in playing a game or two, without losing his or her kingdom !

Elephant census: Forest Dept. trains volunteers, officers

Mysuru, Apr. 26- The Forest Department conducted a day-long workshop yesterday to train volunteers and staff for the forthcoming All-India Synchronized Asian Elephant Census to be held in Karnataka from May 16 to 19 along with other southern States. Around 210 volunteers and 140 staff took part.

The workshop was attended by 210 volunteers and 140 staff members and was the second in the series of four such workshops slated to be held across Karnataka. While the first was held at Bannerghatta, the third is slated to be held at Chikkamagaluru on April 29 and the fourth at Dandeli on May 2.

The volunteers were briefed about the objectives and the methodology to be adopted for the elephant census conducted once every five years and explained about their role in the entire exercise.

Though the previous census figures revealed that there were 6,072 elephants in Karnataka, forest officials with the help of the volunteers will conduct the latest census on line transect method on May 17, block counting and waterholes where elephant herds could be seen for population demography data on May 18 and 19, respectively.

Additional Principal Chief Conservator of Forests G.V. Ranga Rao, Chief Conservator of Forests Elephant Project Dilip Kumar and others spoke on the elephant census and held practical sessions on dung count line transact method and methodology of elephant population estimation exercise.

The census exercise which will kick off on May 16 simultaneously across all protected areas and forests identified to harbour elephant population, will begin with a study of the elephant distribution map. The participants were imparted theoretical lessons on line transect and block counting in the morning. Practical sessions were held late in the afternoon.

The protocol for population estimation is designed by the Project Elephant Directorate, Ministry of Environment and Forests, and will help determine the population structure besides the age and sex ratios of the elephants.

While the census will be held across the State, the Mysore Elephant Reserve (MER), spread across Bhadra-Nagarahole-Bandipur-BRT Wildlife Sanctuary, Cauvery Wildlife Reserve, and Bannerghatta, covering more than 11,000 sq km, harbours most of the elephants in the State.

All the cars had bouquets on their bonnets and were decorated with flowers, colourful stripes and even had posters with names of bride and bridegroom pasted on windshields, just to misguide the local people and also the Police officers about the raids.

The officers raided the properties of SLN Group including a coffee processing unit, an instant coffee works unit located in the Karnataka Industrial Area Development Board (KIADB) Industrial Area at Kudlur, a petrol bunk and a saw mill located at Madapatna, SLN Eden Garden (a posh residential layout), Purple Palms Resort, a house located at Bollur near Guddehosur and a coffee estate at Pollibetta.

Sources said that SLN Group Managing Partners Vishwanathan and Sathappan are related to former Union Finance Minister P. Chidambaram and the raids were a part of the continued operation carried out by the IT sleuths against Chidambaram and his son Karti since 2015.

Sources added that IT sleuths had recovered crucial documents which were being examined at the time we went to the press at 2.30 pm.

District Administration to host Basava Jayanti celebrations from Apr. 28 to 30

Mysuru, Apr. 26 (US&SP)- Basava Jayanti will be celebrated on a grand scale by District Administration, Veerashaiva Association and Basava Balaga Okkuta from Apr. 28 to 30.

Disclosing this at a press meet at Rajendra Bhavan in JSS Hospital premises here yesterday, Celebration Committee President Dr. Nandeesh Hanche said that the celebration would be graced by Suttur Seer Sri Shivarathri Deshikendra Swamiji and Heads of all Mutts in the district.

He added that a colourful procession would be taken out from Basavanna statue at Sri Shivarathri Rajendra Circle to be launched by former Chief Minister B.S. Yeddyurappa.

The procession would have folk troupes, decorated tableaux and traditional music. The procession would pass through Chamaraja Double Road, Narayana Shastri Road, Vani Vilas Road, Agrahara and back to starting point, he explained.

A stage programme will be held on Apr. 29 at Kalamandira at 10 am. Akashavani artiste Shyala Siddharamappa would render Vachanas. District in-Charge Minister Dr. H.C. Mahadevappa would inaugurate the programme at 10.30 am.

B.S. Yeddyurappa will release the books Basava Bimba, Yuga Pravarthaka Basavanna and Kushalamathiyonka Dev (Hindi version of Kannada book Janara Deva). Jnanapith awardee Dr. Chandrashekar Kambara will deliver a lecture.

Other programmes that day include Vachana Gayana by T.M. Vaishanavi at 2.30 pm, a seminar at 3 pm, lecture by Dr. C. Veeranna at 5.30 pm and music by M.S. Sheela at 6.30 pm.

The valedictory on Apr. 30 at 10 am will have Kannada & Culture Minister Umashree inaugurating the cultural programme under the graceful presence of Mathe Basavanjali of Basava Jnana Mandira. Cine Actors Sunil, Siri Vanalli and Aishwarya Prasad will be the chief guests. Sri Nijaguna Prabhu Thontadarya Swamiji and Dr. Sharathchandra Swamiji will speak on 'Role of Seers' in building a healthy society' at 2.30 pm. Sri Adrushya Kadasiddeshwara Swamiji of Siddagiri will grace the closing ceremony at 4.30 pm. Singer Shankar Shanbhag will present a music programme at 6.30 pm.

Achievers Prashant (Agriculture), Madu Mallesh (Education), Vachana Sanchya Troupe (Literature), M. Nikhilesh Mallikarjun (social service), Dr. Manjappa Mahadevappa (medicine) and K.L. Rahul (cricket) will be felicitated on the occasion, he explained.

Okkuta President T.S. Lokesh Thumbala, Treasurer B.S. Prashant, Gen. Secretary B. Mahesh, Veerashaiva Mahasabha District President H.V. Basavaraj and others were present.

As Siddarameshwara Jayanti, netas skip Mahaveer Jayanti too

Mysuru, Apr. 26 (US&SP)- On the lines of Siddarameshwara Jayanti (that was held yesterday), Mahaveer Jayanti too, organised by District Administration, Department of Kannada & Culture and Jain Associations, this morning at Kalamandira here turned a damp squib with none of the netas listed in the invitations turning up for the function except MLA Vasu who made a brief appearances. In the absence of District in–Charge Minister, ZP President Nayeema Sulthana inaugurated the programme and offered floral tributes to a portrait of Mahaveer.

Sri Bhuvanakeerthi Bhattaraka Pattacharya Swamiji of Jain Mutt, Kanakagiri, graced the occasion. H. Chennappa, Assistant Director, Department of Kannada and Culture, Heads of Jain Samajas, DDPUE Jayaprakash and others were present. Dr. Abhijit Shastri, Professor, Jain Studies, delivered a lecture.

Chief Minister heads to Gundlupet, Nanjangud to thank voters

Mysuru, Apr. 26 (MTY&DM)- Hitting back at the State BJP President B.S. Yeddyurappa (BSY) for predicting early Assembly polls in the State, Chief Minster Siddharamaiah wondered whether Yeddyurappa was the Election Commissioner to say so. Speaking to press persons upon his arrival at Mandakalli Airport this morning, Siddharamaiah who was en route to Gundlupet to take part in the Congress Thanksgiving Convention there, said that Yeddyurappa had earlier acted as Income Tax Commissioner when IT raids were carried out on Congress leaders and now he was acting as an Election Commissioner, saying that Assembly polls will be advanced by Siddharamaiah.

Asserting that the Assembly polls will take place only in May 2018 as scheduled, he expressed confidence that the Congress would retain power.

When asked about reports on his going on a foreign jaunt, Siddharamaiah said that he has been invited by NRIs to visit Gulf Countries and he will be going on a two-day tour of Dubai to inaugurate an NRI Forum there.

Asserting that the State was not opposed to GST (Goods & Service Tax), he said that Modi had opposed introduction of GST as Gujarat Chief Minister, when the previous UPA Government had proposed to introduce GST.

When asked about senior Congress leader and former MP A.H. Vishwanath's possible exit from the party, the CM maintained that Vishwanath would not leave the party.

The CM, who was accompanied by Ministers Dr. G. Parameshwara, M.B. Patil & H. Anjaneya and KPCC Working President Dinesh Gundu Rao, was welcomed by MP R. Dhruvanarayan, Nanjangud MLA Kalale Keshavamurthy, DC D. Randeep, KEA Chairman Siddaraju, MyLac Chairman H.A. Venkatesh, MUDA Chairman D. Dhruvakumar and a host of officials.

BJP sweeps MCD polls

New Delhi, Apr. 26- The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) is set to rule Delhi's Municipal Corporation (MCD) for the next five years after the party is leading by huge margins in 186 seats combining all three civic bodies (North Delhi, South Delhi and East Delhi).

The elections were held in 270 seats in all three civic bodies recently.

The results came as a major setback for the ruling Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) which had earlier expressed confidence of taking over the reins of MCD polls. Meanwhile, Ajay Maken stepped down as the Chief of Congress party in Delhi holding himself responsible for the defeat.

Train runs over man

Mysuru, Apr. 26 (RK&VNS) - An incident of a person being run over by a train was reported near Ashokapuram Railway Station this morning. The deceased has been identified as Nagaraju (30), a resident of Chikkaharadanahalli, who owned a tea shop near the Railway Station.

The Police said that Nagaraju was run over by a train while he was trying to cross the railway line at around 7.30 am.

Few passersby informed the Railway Police who arrived at the spot and shifted Nagaraju to Bhavani Hospital. He later breathed his last at 10.30 am owing to severe blood loss.

Railway Police SI Krishna Murthy has registered a case.

Nagaraju's body has been shifted to MMC&RI mortuary for post-mortem.

CFTRI launches 'Teff' superfood

Mysuru, Apr. 26- Mysuru-based Central Food Technological Research Institute (CFTRI) launched its indigenously developed agrotechnology superfood 'Teff' in Bengaluru yesterday.

'Teff', being a drought resistant crop, has the capacity to yield 200 to 250 kg per acre and can been grown in both Kharif and Rabi seasons. The crop is considered to be most suitable for dry areas in Karnataka.

According to sources, the Teff crop is rich in micronutrients like Calcium, Iron and Vitamin C and blend with cuisines such as rotis, gluten-free breads, dosas and others. The institute has signed a MoU with Sri Sri Rural Development Programme to support the farmers in production of superfood and also in farm gate food processing. CFRTI also plans to conduct workshops to sensitise farmers from across the State to help develop recipes for Teff. It may be recalled that the institute had recently announced the agrotechnologies developed for chia and quiona superfoods grown in Indian conditions.

Pet Talk

Maneka Gandhi

In this week's Pet Talk,

Maneka speaks about the stripes of zebra, squirrel and striped mouse and explains how tigers communicate and about gaining a dog's trust

How did the zebra and the squirrel and the striped mouse get their stripes?

There are several reasons that scientists have given over the decades:

a) The stripes allow them to merge into the woodland background, so as to escape predators.

b) Stripes help in cooling the body from overheating.

c) Hunters find moving striped objects difficult to target accurately — the so called "motion dazzle confusion effect."

However, this current theory has the most support: that parasites — mosquitoes and flies — find it impossible to attack striped animals, while they can feast on uniformly coloured animals. Dr. Tim Caro of the University of California, Davis and Dr. Susanne Akesson from Lund University, Sweden, point out that horse flies and similar parasites, which feed on the blood of animals, are attracted to light that is oriented in a particular direction (polarisation) or glare. This glare attracts and helps these insects zone in on the target. Dark skin polarises light better than brown or white. But if the skin were striped dark and white, it becomes less attractive to the bloodsucker bugs. Akesson has argued that the black and white pattern "is ideal in its functions of disrupting this signal of reflected polarized light" and, in effect, is camouflaged to flies as well as big cats." (A science writer, who covered this research paper, has suggested that we use Zebra striped wall paper to shoo away mosquitoes and flies. Worth trying!)

Dr. Caro and colleagues studied in detail seven different members of the equid family across Africa and Asia — On one hand studying their skin colouration and striping, and on the other the location and prevalence of blood-sucking flies, such as the horsefly and the tsetse, across this broad region of Sub-Saharan Africa. Their paper, "The function of zebra stripes," which appeared in the journal Nature Communications, finds the strongest connection between the biting fly annoyance and the number, spacing and intensity of stripes in the face, neck, belly, rump, flank and legs of the striped equids.

In effect then, stripes evolved in African equids largely to protect them from the blood sucker insects which abound and thrive in the African tropics. Stripes fool these bugs, perhaps by the disruption of the polarisation of light falling on the striped pattern on the hair and skin. Is this why zebras or striped squirrels are not found in the U.S., Northern Europe or Russia? Neither is the climate there welcome to such bloodsucker insects.

What is a treatment for dog ear mites?

There are several types of mites that can live in your dog's ear, but the most common are Otodectes cynotis — tiny, eight-legged parasites that feed on the wax and oils in a dog's ear canal. An individual mite has a three-week life cycle, and is barely detectable by the naked eye. Causing irritation and inflammation ear mites can infect the external and internal canal, and lead to more serious skin, or ear infections, if left untreated. Infection usually produces a characteristic dark discharge; in some cases, the ear canal can become entirely obstructed by this coffee ground-like debris.

Highly contagious, ear mites are most common in outdoor cats, which can infect their canine companions. They are most often passed from pet to pet in casual contact at home or outside. Humans are generally immune to ear mites.

General symptoms of ear mites are: i. Excessive scratching and rubbing of ears; ii. Head shaking; iii. Black or brown waxy secretion; iv. Strong odour; v. Inflammation; vi. Obstruction of ear canal with coffee ground-like discharge.

It is important to bring your dog to a veterinarian for an accurate diagnosis. Your veterinarian will take a sample of ear discharge and evaluate it microscopically to confirm the presence of ear mites. Avoid self-diagnosis, since certain types of bacterial infections can mimic the symptoms of ear mites.

i. Ear mites can be treated with products your veterinarian will prescribe, that are applied directly in the ear, or parasite medications that are applied right to the skin.

ii. If the ears are infected, or have a build-up of debris, gentle cleaning may be required with cotton and a canine ear cleaner. (This may require sedation, depending on the dog's temperament and the severity of build-up.) Your veterinarian may also prescribe anti-inflammatory drugs, or an antibiotic, to resolve infections.

iii. A dog will start to feel relief soon after treatment begins, but please complete the full course of treatment, and remember that all animals in the household need to be treated to ensure full eradication.

How do tigers communicate?

Tigers communicate using vocal sounds, body language and marking on trees. Although they live fairly solitary lives, they do get together occasionally, and it is during these interactions that they communicate with one another. Communication helps to warn of predators or other danger, establish territory and form social bonds.

One of the ways tigers communicate is by scent. Males and females, and mother lions and cubs, often rub their faces together as a way of transferring their scent to each other. Male tigers often leave their scent by urinating on objects, such as trees, which marks their territory.

Another form of communication is vocal communication. Mother tigers call their young by using soft moans to summon them. The groan is a non-threatening form of communication. When a tiger roars, it may be used as a sign of danger, or as a warning to other tigers to back off.

Like all cats, tigers are masters at visual communication. They use different forms of body language to communicate different emotions. For example, a defensive posture is one where a tiger will lay its ears flat and bares its teeth. A relaxed tiger will have its ears and tail in an upright position.

How do I gain a dog's trust?

Dog socialisation is different from human socialisation. When dogs meet, they say "hello" and shake hands in a different way from humans. If you are meeting a dog for the first time, you will need to gain his trust by using dog language, rather than human language. If you are trying to gain the trust of a new puppy or dog, you will also need to use certain techniques to allow the dog to see you as a friend and owner, rather than a threat.

1. Remain calm when you first meet the dog. If you are interacting with your new dog for the first time, or if you are interacting with a dog you have never met before, avoid the temptation to approach the dog in an excited state. Instead, project calm and relaxed energy when you meet the dog. Act calmly and greet the dog softly.

2. Acting excited can make the dog excited and lead to an aggressive greeting, like jumping up on you or barking at you. This can also trigger the dog's fight or flight instinct, as a stranger approaching the dog with high energy can feel like a threat to the dog.

3. Keep your distance. Respect the dog's space by addressing the human with, or owner of, the dog first. Ignore the dog and avoid standing too close to the dog. You should allow at least four feet between you and the dog. This will give the owner time to give you permission to interact with the dog.

4. Get down to the dog's level. Ask the owner if you can interact with the dog. If they say yes, approach the dog from the side, never from the front. Kneel down next to the dog, facing the same direction as the dog is facing. This will show the dog you are occupying his personal space, but you are not being confrontational. Do not make eye contact and hold your hand down in a fist.

5. Allow the dog to approach you. Rather than putting your hand out to the dog, let him respond to you by sniffing your hand. If he remains calm, you can pet the front of his chest.

6. Do not touch an unfamiliar dog from above, or pat his head. If the dog licks your hand, he has accepted you. But if he turns his head away or does not pay attention to you, he is not interested in interacting. Avoid taking this personally. Instead, interact again with the owner and try again when you next meet the dog.

7. Use a treat. If you are trying to get a dog to trust you as his new owner, you can integrate treats into this process by allowing the dog to approach you and take a treat from your hand. When the dog takes the treat, say "Good dog." After a few sessions of taking the treat from your hand, the dog may touch your hand before taking the treat. Once he starts to do this, you can try to pet the front of his chest and under his chin. It can take time to gain the dog's trust, and the more you meet or interact calmly with the dog, the more likely he is to trust you. Progress slowly, from using the treat to petting the dog, to avoid scaring him. Once he allows you to pet him, you have started to build trust between you and the dog.

Supergiant take on Knight Riders

Pune, Apr. 26- Rising Pune Supergiant will look to draw level with the Kolkata Knight Riders on the points table when they come up against the two-time champions today. Both teams are riding a high and one can therefore expect a mouth-watering contest.

RPS is fresh from their win against table-toppers Mumbai Indians on Monday night. The next six days could make or break RPS' campaign; if they are able to build on the momentum they have from their three-match winning streak and add a few more wins, they will find themselves fairly well place in the race to the Playoffs.

The Kolkata Knight Riders decimated the Royal Challengers Bangalore in their previous match. After being bowled out for 131, one can expect a few harsh words would've been spoken in the KKR dressing room, and it was not surprising to see Gautam Gambhir's side come out firing on all cylinders. The KKR skipper showed aggressive intent by setting attacking fields, which included him standing at forward short leg briefly, and the bowlers responded. KKR skittled out RCB for 49, the lowest total in the IPL, and the team was back in the dressing room mission accomplished in less than ten overs.

Since the time he was brought into the XI, Rahul Tripathi has scored more runs than any other RPS batsman. The opener appears to enjoying the opportunity that has come his way, and has batted fearlessly. He is the form player, and RPS will expect him to once again to get the team off to a good start. Ajinkya Rahane and Steven Smith have blown hot and cold and the two international stars will be keen to make a big score. Ben Stokes may not have contributed too much with the bat, but he has been terrific with the ball – at crucial junctures too; he, along with Imran Tahir, will be the two key bowlers for RPS.

The KKR openers have been aggressive upfront; the overall scoring rate of KKR's opening partnership in IPL 2017 is 11.77. The punt to use Narine as opener has come off in the last couple of matches; the Trinidadian has scored 76 runs off 34 balls in his last two outings. Narine could be a hit or a miss, but not Gambhir, Robin Uthappa or Manish Pandey, who are batting extremely well and have been consistent accumulators over the years. On the bowling front, KKR will look towards Nathan Coulter-Nile and Umesh Yadav to do damage with the new ball and then hope Narine can slip in four quiet overs.

Gautam Gambhir and Ben Stokes are both fierce competitors and play the game hard. It promises to make for a mouth-watering contest if they come up against each other. Also look out for Rahul Tripathi against Coulter-Nile and Umesh Yadav; the RPS opener has treated the quick bowlers with disdain so far, scoring against them at a strike-rate of 166. The KKR new-ball pair might present a different level of challenge and it will be interesting to see how the 26-year old shapes up.

Apollo Hospital implants world's smallest pacemaker into a 68-year-old patient

Mysuru, Apr. 26 (KS) - Apollo BGS Hospital, Mysuru, became the first hospital in the State to implant the world's smallest pacemaker into a 68-year-old patient with bradycardia.

The implant was performed by Dr. Arun Srinivas, Head of Cardiology Department & Interventional Cardiologist, Apollo BGS Hospital, along with Dr. H.P. Guruprasad, Dr. P. Jayakumar and Dr. Adithya Udupa.

Dr. Arun Srinivas said that the 68-year-old patient had a reaction from a previous implanted regular pacemaker, due to which it had to be removed. Since his veins were blocked, which are normally used for regular pacemaker leads, his only lifesaving option was the new Leadless pacemaker, which was implanted through the leg. It attaches directly to the walls of the heart and gives electrical signals for maintaining a normal heart rate and added that this new pacemaker is entirely MRI compatible, which can adjust the heart rate according to the patient's activity and needs of the body.

He said that the doctors elected to use the Leadless pacemaker because unlike traditional pacemakers, the device does not require cardiac wires (leads) or a surgical 'pocket' under the skin to deliver pacing therapy and hence is a boon for patients who have a pacemaker / lead infection or blocked veins in the chest. It has reduced the complications and risks associated with the routine pacemaker by almost 50%, like lead infection, pacemaker pocket infection, venous obstruction etc., Dr. Arun Srinivas added. The Leadless Pacemaker also incorporates a retrieval feature to enable retrieval of the device when possible; however, the device is designed to be left in the body and the miniaturised leadless pacemaker is designed with a unique feature that enables it to be permanently turned off so it can remain in the body and a new device can be implanted without risk of electrical interaction.

Columbia Asia holds awareness session on Bone and Joint Health

Mysuru, Apr.26- Knee and hip joint pains are common problems faced by people of all age groups. It is estimated that in India, more than four million people above 60 years and more than six million across all age groups need help for knee disorders.

With an aim to encourage people to come out and seek help in making their lives better, Columbia Asia Hospital, Mysuru, conducted an awareness session on Bone and Joint Health at the hospital on Apr.22.

Around 65 people attended the session that included both patients and their families and patients who have undergone knee replacement surgery in the past.

"Generally knee problems are associated with old age but it has been found that there is an increase in the number of young people under the age of 55 who complain of knee problems too. Appropriate treatment, at times surgical, can provide effective relief of pain and disability associated with conditions like these," said Dr. B.R. Prashanth, Joint Replacement Surgeon.

Other speakers were Dr. Balasubramanyam - Anaesthesiologist, Shivani Gurung - Physiotherapy Executive and Greena Menezes - Asst. Manager - Operations and Dietetics. Col. Rahul Tewari, GM, Columbia Asia Hospital, Mysuru, was present.

WORLD VETERINARY DAY ON APR.29

Musings on Veterinary Profession

By Dr. C.S. Arun

On account of World Veterinary Day being celebrated on Apr. 29, here we publish an article on veterinary profession by Dr. C.S. Arun, a post-graduate Veterinarian practicing small animal medicine in Mysuru since twenty-two years. Author of many books and scientific articles about animal health care, he has been recognised as "Best Veterinarian" by Karnataka Veterinary Association in the year 2013

The last Saturday of April every year is celebrated as World Veterinary Day to mark the contributions of the Veterinarians to global health.

A Veterinarian is a doctor who cures the ailments of the animals. Apart from treatment, the Vet is also responsible for improving the production of the animals thereby contributing towards eradication of hunger and malnutrition. This noble profession is existent since ages as the animals always formed a part and parcel of human society.

Animals served as crucial experimental models in development of human medicine. The present concept of "one-health" duly acknowledges the role of Veterinarians in protecting world health.

World Veterinary Day theme for this year is "Antimicrobial resistance-from awareness to action." Antimicrobials are the main tools of human and animal medicine in promoting global health which is a key component of animal welfare, food security and safety. Safeguarding the efficacy of these life-saving medications, as well as their availability and effectiveness for both human and veterinary use, is essential to preserve our future. However, overuse and misuse of these drugs has dramatically accelerated the emergence of resistance to antimicrobials.

Veterinary services have a key part to play in the fight against antimicrobial resistance through their role in regulating and supervising the use of antimicrobials, offering professional advice to farmers and animal owners and collaborating with the human health sector. To continue to progress in disease control management and in improving animal welfare, veterinarians need to encourage and achieve a sustainable change in behaviours towards a responsible and prudent antimicrobial use.

I am in this profession since three decades and hopefully will continue to serve for two more decades. Why did I choose to be a Vet? I should confess here that it is not due to extreme love towards animals but because of the lure of a Government job which was a mirage in those days. All my seniors used to get placed in the Department immediately after graduation. Job prospects are almost the same today or even better because of increased responsibilities thrust on the animal doctors. Though the number of colleges in the State has increased to four, the student intake is not more than 280. As there are no private colleges, there is no menace of donation, capitation fees etc. Good, isn't it?

After graduation, a Veterinarian may work in Animal Husbandry Department, KMF, Private Dairies, Sheep Board, Poultry Companies, Pharmaceuticals, Diagnostic Labs, Insurance Cos., Zoos, Colleges, Research Institutes, Army, Civil Services, Private Hospitals, NGOs, etc. There are ample opportunities to go abroad for study or work.

Life of veterinarians is not a bed of roses. Challenges faced by us are plenty. Since we deal with dumb animals, most of the times we will be clueless about the history. Moreover, most of our patients are non-co-operative. They may kick, butt, bite, scratch or even kill us (Yes, it has happened!). Always, there is a risk of communicable diseases from animals. Of course, we are trained to handle such situations.

The real challenge is to handle the clients, the animal owners, who are very difficult to be satisfied. Coming from diverse backgrounds, they need a lot of education. Obviously, a Vet with good inter-personal skills will earn a reputation fast. Also, a Vet should be at service always, that is, 24/7/365. So, availability and communication skills top the list of client expectations from a Vet. Budding veterinarians have a lesson to learn here!

As a canine practitioner, I am blessed in many ways like fairly understanding clients, good workplace, good income and regular working hours. My friends in large animal practice, especially in rural areas, work in unfavourable conditions with scanty resources with poor recognition. But the satisfaction they get when a sick animal, the backbone of a poor farmer, gets well through their treatment is immense. It cannot be replaced by any rewards. Hats off to them!

A lot has to be done in our field. Hospitals need to be better equipped. Round-the-clock health care, ambulance and in-patient facilities are needed everywhere. A nice holiday-home is required for boarding the pets. Stray animals need a place where they get a compassionate care. Old-age homes and a separate graveyard are very much essential.

Many zoonotic diseases are flaring up which need a solid treatment strategy backed by research. All these need huge financial inputs. While the Government funds are mainly for large animals, poultry sector is dominated by private players. Pet field is serviced by private practitioners. Of late, business conglomerates are showing interest in developing world-class facilities for pet health care which is happening in metros. Overall, there is a huge potential for growth in veterinary field. A Vet should make use of these opportunities with open-mindedness, hard work, dedication, continuous upgradation of knowledge and most importantly compassion towards the dumb and hapless creatures.

Hoax bomb calls at Mysuru, Mandya Railway Stations

Mysuru/Mandya, Apr.26- Tension prevailed in Mysuru and Mandya Railway Stations yesterday afternoon following an anonymous caller calling up Mandya Railway Station Control Room and informing the personnel there about bombs being placed in Mandya & Mysuru Railway Stations.

As soon the personnel received the call, he informed the Railway authorities, who in turn called up the officials of Mysuru Railway Station and informed the matter.

The Mysuru Railway Police, immediately informed the matter to Mandi Police Station, following which Mandi Inspector Lakshmikanth Talwar and staff rushed to Mysuru Railway Station, besides summoning the Dog Squad and the Bomb Disposal Squad to the spot. The Police personnel then conducted a search for explosives but in vain. As the bomb could not be found despite thorough search for it, the Police came to a conclusion that it was a hoax bomb scare call.

It is learnt that Mandi Police have taken a suspect into custody and are interrogating him.

Meanwhile, a hoax bomb scare call was received at Mandya Railway Station at about 1.30 pm yesterday following which, the Dog Squad and the Bomb Disposal Squad was summoned to the Railway Station, who conducted a thorough search but in vain.

As the Cops could not find any bomb after a thorough search, the came to a conclusion that it was a hoax bomb scare call.

It is learnt that the caller spoke in Kannada and Police have launched a hunt to nab the anonymous caller based on the mobile number they have obtained from the Railway Control Room.

Tashi Lhunpo Monastery celebrates 28th birthday of 11th Panchen Lama

Bylakuppe, Apr. 26- The Tashi Lhunpo Monastery in Bylakuppe recently celebrated the 28th birthday of the 11th Panchen Lama — Jetsun Tenzin Gedhun Yeshi Trinley Phuntsok Pal Sangpo, or Gedhun Choekyi Nyima.

Sakya Gongma Rinpoche, the 41st Sakya Trizin, was the chief guest while Choephel Thupten, Chief Representative, South Zone, Central Tibetan Administration, was the special guest.

The Tashi Lhunpo Monastery's Acting Abbott, Zigyab Rinpoche, delivering the official statement, highlighted the significance of the seat of the Panchen Lama and called upon the supporters around the world to continue to pressurise the Chinese Government for the immediate release of the 11th Panchen Lama.

"China's complete disregard for the age-old Tibetan religious and historical tradition of the Dalai Lama and the Panchen Lama recognising each other's incarnations and the Chinese government's appointment of a fake Panchen Lama to further their political designs for the Tibetan people have greatly hurt the sentiments of the Tibetan people and freedom-loving people of this world," Zigyab Rinpoche said.

Immediately after the 14th Dalai Lama publicly recognised Gedun Choekyi Nyima as the 11th Panchen Lama in May 1995, the Chinese authorities kidnapped the then six-year-old boy, making him the world's youngest political prisoner. The 11th Panchen Lama and Chadrel Rinpoche, the Abbott of the Tashi Lhunpo Monastery and Head of the Search Committee for the 11th Panchen Lama, have both been under Chinese custody since their capture in 1995 and have remained missing for 22 long years.

The Monks of Tashi Lhunpo Monastery offered prayers for the Dalai Lama and the Panchen Lama. The Sakya Gongma Rinpoche, Choephel Thupten and the Representative of the Tibetan Dickey Larsoe Settlement too addressed the gathering.

Kunchok Tenzin proposed a vote of thanks, after which the monks and the public offered silk scarves to the portrait of His Holiness the Panchen Lama.

Septuagenarian killed in hit-and-run case

Mysuru, Apr. 26 (RK&KS)- An incident of a 70-year-old woman being killed when a speeding car rammed into her has been reported on Dattagalli Ring Road here yesterday afternoon.

The deceased has been identified as Puttamma, a resident of Kergalli Salundi village in the taluk, who used to sell greens for a living.

It is reported that Puttamma had come to her brother's house in Dattagalli and was on her way back to the village. While she was walking near Adithya Circle, an unidentified car rammed into her and sped away, killing her on the spot.

K.R. Traffic Police have registered a case in this regard.

Lightning kills man, dog

Mysuru, Apr. 26 (SBD&KS)- In a tragic incident, a man and his dog were killed when lightning struck them at Nadanahalli in the taluk yesterday.

The deceased has been identified as Nagaraju (45), a resident of Kempaianahundi who was working as a watchman at a farm house in Nadanahalli.

It is reported that as heavy rains pounded the city yesterday, Nagaraju, came out to let the dog into a shelter, but lightning struck him and his dog, killing them, said Village Accountant Parashivamurthy.

WORD OF THE DAY

Avarice

Pronunciation: av-er-is Meaning: Insatiable greed for riches; inordinate, miserly desire to gain and hoard wealth.
Origin: Avarice entered English in the 1200s, at the time when Middle English was spoken. It comes from an Old French term, which finds its roots in the Latin word avār(us) "greedy."

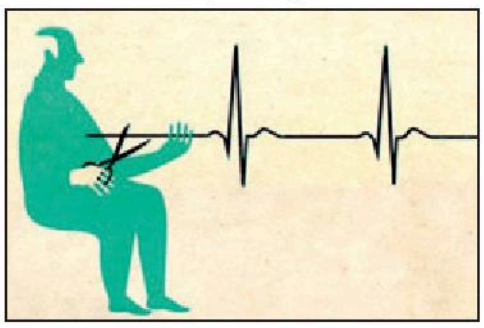
THE ODD WORD

Blatherskite

A person who talks at great length without making much sense

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Give up the ghost



Meaning: To die, or in the case of inanimate objects, to cease working.
Origin: There are many uses of this phrase in the Bible, including this, from Miles Coverdale's Version, 1535, Acts 12:23: Immediatly the angell of the LORDE smote him, because he gaue not God the honoure: And he was eaten vp of wormes, and gaue vp the goost. The metaphorical use of the phrase, that is, in relation to something not living and not able to become a ghost, is 19th century; for example, James Kirke Paulding's, Westward Ho!, 1832, includes: "At length it gave up the ghost, and, like an over-cultivated intellect, became incurably barren."

QUOTE BOX

After silence, that which comes nearest to expressing the inexpressible is music. —Aldous Huxley

RIDDLE THIS

CRYPTOQUIP

The Cryptoquip is a substitution cipher in which one letter stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words and words using an apostrophe give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is by trial and error.

Seminar on Real Estate Regulatory Authority

Mysuru, Apr.26- With effect from May 1, 2017, a new Act called Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Act, 2016 is coming into force. The Act seeks to protect home-buyers as well as help to boost the investments in the real estate industry.

The Act makes it mandatory for all commercial and residential real estate projects where the land is more than 500 square meters or eight apartments to register with the Real Estate Regulatory Authority (RERA) for launching a project.

A seminar on RERA has been arranged on Apr.28 from 10 am to 1 pm at Rotary Children's Library Hall, JLB Road in city.

This seminar will be helpful to the House Building Co-op. Societies, Real Estate Companies, Builders & Land Developers, Contractors, etc. Interested participants may contact Bhavani Associates, Mysuru, on Mob: 98451-20429 for information.
